

CLOSING REMARKS

Honorable guest speakers and dear delegates, I hope all of you had very a fulfilling scientific session with many, lively interactions.

I hope that the different sessions held today have refreshed your understanding of various aspects of biosimilar production and their clinical use.

I am confident that these interactions have better equipped you to handle different clinical decision points associated with biosimilar use.

The clinical case scenarios discussed in the interactive sessions may have brought some of your own dilemmas to light. I am sure you now have strategies to handle such situations.

I want to draw your attention to the fact that, this Congress was just a first step in our interaction about biosimilars. We look forward to a series of such events in the near future and invite your active participation and interaction in these upcoming events.

I thank all the distinguished speakers, delegates, industry partners, content support and event management partners; all the organizers and all those who were involved directly or indirectly in making this Congress a grand success!

Thank you one and all!
